ILGA recognises Pink Therapy as a main contributor to the international LGBT community.

A recent coup for Pink Therapy was its acceptance as a member of ILGA, the International Lesbian and Gay Association. This represents a new era for Pink Therapy as a recognised promoter of queer rights internationally.

ILGA was founded in 1978, and since then have made focused and coordinated steps in improving the state of LGBTI lives across the world. They have been responsible for a huge number of conferences and civil rights campaigns, and serious steps forward in equality for sexual minorities (such as the removal of homosexuality from the WHO list of diseases).

Membership with ILGA will allow Pink Therapy to not only spread its message of 'Embracing Diversity', but also increase publicity for the organisation. Furthermore, Pink Therapy will augment the work of ILGA, strengthening this mutualistic partnership, and ultimately benefiting the fight for equality.

"I was delighted that we were invited to apply for ILGA membership, it felt a significant recognition of our international work and this will hopefully be a wonderful way to disseminate our articles to an international audience." was the response from Director of Pink Therapy, Dominic Davies, whose consistent efforts have brought the organisation into a new, esteemed standing.

Pink Therapy has joined what is now an association of almost 1000 members with the objective of improving the lives of LGBTI people internationally.
